FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1918.

By a vote of 53 to 32 the Wisconsin state assembly on Wednesday passed a resolution condemning Senator La Follette for failing to see the righteousness of the nation's cause and to support the government in matters vital to winning the war. And the nation applauds the action.

Senator Pomeroy last week introduced in the senate a bill to amend the new income and excise profits tax laws so that the amount due the government as a result of those acts may be paid in monthly installments dating from July 15 to Dec. 15, instead of requiring a full settlement prior to June 15 as is now the case. Senator Pomeroy's bill would have the deferred payments secured and bear interest to the government at the rate of 3 per cent. "Unless some legislation of this kind is obtained," said Senator Pomeroy, "many industries in Ohio and elsewhere throughout the United States will go to the wall. The profits have been making money all over the world, and the government has been put into plant extensions to meet the increased demands made upon them by the government. Many have borrowed to the full extent of their credit. Some relief must be given."

NEW CALL WILL AFFECT 800,000 MEN

Washington, March 6.—While a large number of men will be called out during the present year to fill up the army and complete its organization, it was learned tonight that the government plans do not call for the creation of any additional divisions in 1918.

The announcement concerning the second draft, expected soon from Provost Marshall Gen. Crowder, may outline the manner in which less than 1,000,000 men—probably not much in excess of 800,000—are to be summoned gradually during the year to complete the existing organizations.

Delay in the announcement is understood to be due to uncertainty as to which method of selecting quotas to the states is to be followed. The senate already has passed and the house military committee has favorably reported amendment to the law to base the quota on the number of men in Class I, instead of upon the total registration of a state.

This change is regarded as certain to be made, but to avoid further delay schedules of allotments under both systems have been prepared at the provost marshal general's office ready to go out as soon as final action is taken.

SHERWOOD AND CANNON

Will Hold Unique Record of Service in House if They Are Re-Elected.

"There never has been a Congress in the history of the country where two men who entered the House at the same time have served together 45 years later, yet if both come back to the Sixty-sixth Congress, which is likely, two veteran members of the present House will begin the forty-sixth year since their association began," remarked former Representative Hill, of Illinois, at the Willard. "General Sherwood is not quite a year older than the former Speaker, who on May 7, will celebrate his eighty-second anniversary. General Sherwood was born on August 13, the year preceding Mr. Cannon's birth. 'Uncle Joe,' of course, has served many more years in Congress than General Sherwood has. The latter was elected to the Forty-third Congress in 1872, the same year that Mr. Cannon was chosen, but General Sherwood retired after one term and went into newspaper work. He didn't come back until 32 years later, and he has been a member of Congress since that time. 'The Illinois veteran served continuously from March 4, 1873, to March 3, 1891, and was then beaten for re-election to the Fifty-second Congress, but he came back to the next Congress and served for eight succeeding terms. Then he was beaten in 1912, but came back in 1914, and will come back again, I verily believe."

"There is not a Republican member of the House, I venture to say, who does not want General Sherwood to be returned, and there is not a Democrat's presence, who is not hoping 'Uncle Joe' will be re-elected. It is not only a matter of sentiment, but these two men with their vast experience and their great wisdom are valuable advisers for the younger members of the House."—Washington Post.

SHERIFF MILLIKEN OUT FOR SECOND TERM

On Wednesday Sheriff T. E. Milliken announced his candidacy for re-nomination at the primaries next August on the Democratic ticket. That he has made good as an official is generally known and he will be re-nominated without opposition. His wide acquaintance and popularity, proven when he was first elected, makes it reasonably certain that he will be called to serve another term.—adv.

PROTECTING OURSELVES.

Sweden, Norway and Denmark have cabled their thanks to the United States government for the release of 11,000 tons of coffee, kerosene, drugs and some delicacies. These goods were released, it is said, as a sort of Christmas gift to the Scandinavian countries, but those countries are expected to return a similar quantity of their products and on as many vessels as it takes to carry our goods to them. The release of these goods has no bearing whatever on the question of the shipment of general supplies to neutrals which is being discussed in London by British and American officials with representatives of European neutrals. As yet these neutral countries have not been willing to provide the guarantees required by the allies. Until they are ready to do that there will be no movement of general supplies. The strange fact is that the neutrals should expect that we would let them have foods and other products which might be shipped into Germany or used as substitutes for domestic articles that were sent to our enemies, says Buffalo Express. The neutrals which are begging for these supplies must accept every safeguard which we wish to impose or go without the supplies.

This war sets before us, by tens of thousands, examples whereby France shall live, as our ancestors, in days of old, lived, by the example of Roland and the blameless knights of the old ballads, and yesterday, by the example of the heroes of the great epic. Let us try to meditate upon the sublime virtues of the soldiers of 1914-17. But, however we may profit by them, to remember them is like dipping water from the ocean with the hand, writes Maurice Banes, in Atlantic. I can take you into the woods, to see springs which I know well; but in these three years of war all the subterranean streams are bubbling to the surface, all the powers of sanctity and heroism are gushing forth, and we, overwhelmed with respect, stand on the brink of the chasm, on the shore of this new sea.

The secretary of war, it is announced, is now considering a plan to permit farm boys in the army to return to their homes at periodical intervals to assist in crop production. They would be given furloughs in the spring and fall, for certain periods, to aid with the farm work. These leaves of absence would not be compulsory, however, any soldier desiring to continue with his regiment would be permitted to do so. Those who wished to go home and help their parents, would, if they were sufficiently advanced in training, be given the opportunity. This might not improve the efficiency of the army but it would certainly prove beneficial to farmers who have been deprived of the assistance of their sons through the draft.

The most interesting event of the year 1918 in astronomical circles probably will be the total eclipse of the sun, scheduled for June 8, the first of the kind to be visible in this country since 1900. The path of totality will extend diagonally across the United States from the state of Florida to the state of Washington. The largest city in the path of totality will be Denver. In Milwaukee the eclipse will be partial, occurring toward the end of the afternoon.

"Art as usual" seems to be the motto of the indomitable Parisians, who are preparing for exhibitions by both the old Salon and the new Salon during the present year for the first time since the opening of the war. The Grand Palais, where the salons usually are held is occupied at present as a hospital; but the municipal council has granted permission for the use of the Petit Palais in the Champs Elysees.

Somebody is predicting that when our boys return from France they will bring the French custom of men greeting men with the kiss embrace. Our boys may pick up some new ideas in France, but we will gamble the kiss embrace will not be one of them. If that custom comes in, we intend to grow whiskers like a Russian's.

It is probably true that music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, but if there is anything that can beat a certain bandmaster and his aggregation for inspiring men into a righteous fighting spirit, it hasn't been found to date.

Uncle Sam has given notice emphatically that he is on the job of winning the war and that he is on the job to stay. The foreign press and public, allied, neutral and enemy, are requested please to copy and take notice of same.

You eat in winter eggs that were laid in the preceding spring, generation or epoch. Why not consume in winter the coal laid in during the spring and summer? It will save many a shiver and it comes cheaper.

Even if bread does come down a little, somebody is almost sure to put up the price of butter, so what is the difference?

TWO DOWN 76 HUN PLANES

No Chance These Human Eagles Won't Take—Captain McCudden, Flight Commander, Prefers to Work Alone and Has System of His Own—Forces Fee to Fight and Has Never Lost an Encounter.

A few nights ago four members of the Royal Horse Guards, all more than six feet in height, and built like Apollos, stood in the lobby of a London theater between the acts. They resembled the Three Musketeers, and attracted attention because of their wonderful physique and splendid bearing. Near by stood three youngsters, none over five feet four, and none weighing more than 120 pounds. The Horse Guards, mere military ornaments, resemble battleships, the three youngsters, torpedo boats; at least, such was the comment of persons who stood near by. The youngsters were airmen. An American, who had observed the six, said: "The big fellows are all right, but give me those kids."

Are the Real Heroes. The airmen, or the flyers, are the heroes of England. All mere boys, they are clean cut, alert, and full of confidence. They are the same as the flyers of all nations. Daredavils, many call them. Most of them expect to be killed, and in the long run most of them are. But, as the average American flyer says: "We get a good fly for our money at that."

Just at the present time, the two heroes of the air in England are Capt. James McCudden, twenty-two years old, and Capt. Phillip Foulard, nineteen. The exploits of these youngsters have but recently become known in London, and when they return for leave, all Britain will be theirs. Captain McCudden has brought down 34 German machines; Captain Foulard has accounted for 42.

There is no chance these human eagles won't take. There is no such thing as fear in their make-up. Captain McCudden is the leader of a squadron which has brought down 60 enemy aircraft. Although a flight commander, he prefers to work alone. He manages his machine, and does his own firing, and is said to be one of the best wing shots in any army.

Battles Above Clouds. His battle grounds lie away above the clouds. He flies, as a rule, at a height varying from 10,000 to 15,000 feet. He has a system all his own. When he spies an enemy aircraft he jockeys the foe from his own course and compels him to fight. He never yet lost an encounter. In a letter to his mother and sister, just published, he says that he recently brought down four German airmen in one day, two before luncheon and two after. The next day his score was three.

England has already had a view of many of the American flyers on their way from America to France. Many of these young men are university undergraduates, and one has but to see them to know that they will quickly take their place with the idols of the air of France, England and Italy.
